4 HELD AFTER WOMAN, FOUND UNCONSCIOUS IN ALLEY, DIES OF HURTS

Tales About Their Whereabouts Conflict.

MAN ADMITS HOME VISITS

Autopsy Performed; Hammer Possibly Used, Is Belief.

The mystery of the death of Mrs. Eva Cumberland, 53, who was found unconscious early yesterday in an alley in the rear of 712 Ninth street southeast, resulted last night in the arrest of three men and one woman. Those under arrest are:

Fred M. Ward, 51, a laborer, of 1351 E street southeast; Edward Taylor, 32, a paper hanger, of 913 Potomac avenue southeast; Mrs. Dorothy Jane Taylor, 23, of 913 Potomac avenue southeast, and Wilbur Allen, 34, a trucker, of Camp Springs, Md.

The men were ordered held at the Fourth Precinct Station and the woman is at the House of Detention because the stories of their activities on Sunday were in conflict, according to police.

Welles Is Nominated For Assistant to Hull

Capital Man, Ex-Head of Latin Division, Named to Higher Post.

President Roosevelt yesterday nominated Sumner Welles, of Washington and Oxon Hill, Md., to be his Assistant Secretary of State. The Senate is expected to ratify the appointment without delay. In choosing Mr. Welles as assistant to Secretary Hull, the President called on a career diplomat whose record at the department is one of "courage, fortitude and ability."

SUMNER WELLES.

The new Assistant Secretary has had a wide career in European and Latin-American affairs. Although he has not been in the department since the Wilson administration, he was frequently called in during the crises in the Chaco and Letitia incidents to advise the department.

He was the youngest man ever to be made chief of the Latin-American affairs division, taking over this position when he was 30 years old in March, 1922. His diplomatic career began in Tokyo in 1915. He was counselor of embassy and charge d'affaires in Buenos Aires during the war when the pro-German sympathies of the Argentine people necessitated an American diplomatic

BILL TO SHIELD CONGRESS GETS U. S. CODES IS MORTGAGE BILL VOTED IN HOUSE TO AID FARMERS

Report of Planned Book Believed Responsible for Legislation.

MEASURE ATTACKED BUT PASSED, 229-29

Heavy Penalties Provided; Not Intended to Muzzle Freedom of Press.

By HAROLD J. T. HORAN.

An official secrets bill of the United States Government was passed yesterday under a suspension of rules in the House of Representatives. The bill was drawn up at the instigation of the Department of State for the purpose of protecting American diplomatic codes and punishing any person guilty of tampering with them. The maximum penalty was fixed at $10,000 fine or 10 years' imprisonment, or both.

The vote was 229 to 29.

The censorship bill is said not to be intended as a muzzle or gag to the freedom of the press. Nevertheless, the greatest air of mystery and hush-hush surrounded it. The Department of State declined to comment beyond the limits of a perfunctory statement, which rambled on about records on oil, gas and Indian matters of the department.

By LAWRENCE SULLIVAN.

President Roosevelt placed the second phase of his emergency farm program before Congress yesterday, a measure to make available some $2,400,000,000 in new Federal credits to refinance rural debts and mortgages.

In his message the Chief Executive added he would submit soon as the third step in the program a measure authorizing reciprocal tariff agreements with foreign nations, "to break through trade barriers and establish foreign markets for farm and industrial products."

As the farm mortgage bill went before the Senate Banking and Currency Committee, the Agricultural Committee practically completed labor on the commodity bill by adding the Simpson plan to guarantee farmers the cost of production through Federal bounties.

D. C. BEER BILL READY FOR FINAL VOTE; WETS LEAD MICHIGAN'S POLL

Margin of Repeal Victory Rises Steadily.

10 DELEGATES MADE CERTAIN

Detroit Drys' Defeat Exceeds Hopes of Their Foes.

Detroit, April 3 (A.P.).—A steadily mounting margin in favor of convention delegates pledged to vote for repeal of the eighteenth amendment was shown as returns from today's referendum in the State's 100 State representative districts began to arrive in heavier volume.

At 11:15 p. m. ten delegates definitely had been chosen to the convention next Monday under pledge to vote for repeal.

Safe Leads in 50 Areas.

In many of the approximately 50 other districts tabulated repeal candidates held what appeared to be safe leads, although their districts were still incomplete. Three of the districts that on first reports gave a dry candidate margin still held to that trend but the vote was from only a few precincts.

Antisaloons League's Head Concedes Wisconsin Repeal Vote Today.

Milwaukee, Wis., April 3 (A.P.).—On the basis of past performances, many observers predict Wisconsin tomorrow will vote for repeal of the eighteenth amendment. Wisconsin was one of the first States to repeal its own prohibition law. It was repealed four years ago in referendum, 350,337 to 196,402.

The Rev. Warren Jones, Madison, State head of the Antisaloons League, concedes the repeals will win tomorrow.

Fifteen delegates are to be elected at large to the constitutional convention to be held at Madison April 25. There are 15 wet and 15 dry candidates, none of whom are identified with any political faction. Each is committed as to how he will vote in the convention. The mandate of the people will be revealed when tomorrow's votes are counted.

FLOOR BATTLE LOOMS TODAY

Licensing Body Alert to Permit Selling Speedily.

By ROBERT C. ALBRIGHT.

The District beer and wine bill last night was in shape for final passage, following complete agreement arrived at by House and Senate conferees.

The agreement, reached at a hurried, one-hour conference late yesterday, gives the Commissioners discretionary power to permit sale of beer on Government property.

Restaurants in operation at least two months will be permitted to serve beer. The original Senate version required six-month operation before a restaurant could be licensed.

Senator Millard E. Tydings (Democrat), Maryland, conference chairman, predicted Senate action on the conference report early this afternoon. The House may not get the bill until tomorrow.

Gore to Oppose Change.

A Senate fight is in the offing on the proposed authorization for the Commissioners to permit beer and wine sales on Federal property. Senator Thomas P. Gore (Democrat), of Oklahoma, author of the original amendment, will oppose the conference change.

EMBARGO ON SOVIET ASKED BY McDONALD

Trade War Regarded Sure in Action Over Arrest of Six Britons.

London, April 3 (U.P.).—A trade war between Great Britain and Soviet Russia, starting with a British embargo on Russian goods, was regarded as inevitable tonight as a result of growing tension over the arrest of six British subjects in Moscow on charges of espionage and sabotage.

Prime Minister J. Ramsay MacDonald told an aroused House of Commons that the government tomorrow would introduce an enabling act conferring on his ministry sweeping powers for trade reprisals against Soviet Russia.

MacDonald declared that the government proposed to pass the bill through all stages with whirlwind action on Wednesday.

He said that the text of the bill would be issued tomorrow. It was understood the act would give the government power to proclaim a total embargo on Russian goods when the Anglo-Soviet trade treaty expires April 17.

The prime minister, in a spirited

Walker Gets Data On Wedding Laws

Betty Compton and Former Mayor Told Banns Must Be Posted.

Cannes, France, April 3 (A.P.).—James J. Walker, former Mayor of New York, and Betty Compton, actress, got complete information at City Hall today about the regulations that must be observed by people who are married under the French law.

One of the regulations is that the banns must be announced 10 days before the wedding. Mr. Walker, however, probably would not be required to observe this rule since he is an honorary member of the Cannes municipal council. No Walker-Compton banns have been posted.

"We were just getting the necessary information," Mr. Walker said in reply to a question concerning a rumor that he and Miss Compton already were married. "When I get married I'll let you know."

White House to Serve Beer When Legal, First Lady Says

Mrs. Roosevelt, in Conference With Newspaperwomen, Also Approves Buying of Easter Apparel; Has Already Purchased Her Own.

By VYLLA POE WILSON.

Beer, budgets and bonnets were the highlights of yesterday's weekly conference of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt with newspaperwomen.

Beer will be served in the White House to those who desire it when it becomes legal, the First Lady announced. She saved this news until the end of the conference when she distributed a prepared statement, signed "Eleanor Roosevelt."

The statement follows:

"When it is legal to serve beer in any Government house, it will naturally be proper to do so for any one who desires it at the White House."

"I hope very much that any change in legislation may tend to improve the present conditions and lead to greater temperance. There has been a great deal of bootlegging in beer and once it is legal this will be unprofit-

Suspended Broker Is Suicide in Office

HARDSHIPS STUDIED IN SECURITIES BILL

Retroactive Part Attacked; Regulation Likely Only on New Issues.

(Associated Press.)
Framers of the administration bill to regulate the sale of securities considered yesterday that some of its provisions would work unintentional hardships and changes immediately were proposed to apply it only to new issues or parts of old issues not yet offered for sale.

Meanwhile, the Senate Judiciary Committee tentatively approved the Johnson bill to bar loans by Americans to any country which was defaulted on its obligations to the Government or the people of the United States.

During consideration of the anti-loan measure, sponsored by Senator Hiram Johnson (Republican), California, the full committee was not present. Chairman Ashurst predicted, however, that a bill of amendments would give it the required majority to report the measure today.

Would Force Registration.
Huston Thompson, former chairman of the Federal Trade Commission, which would administer the security sales act, suggested to the Senate Banking Committee that it be amended to exempt issues already in the hands of investors.

One of the framers of the bill recommended by President Roosevelt to protect the public from fraudulent stocks and bonds, Thompson agreed with committee members that as it now stood the bill would be retroactive in that it would compel all existing securities to be registered. He declared that was not the intention of the administration.

"There might be some danger in the retroactive aspect bringing about a situation where it would violate some contract," he said.

Homestead Associations.

Another change Thompson recommended would exempt shares in mutual building and loan associations and mutual homestead associations where they are not subject to enforcement fees or not selling above par. At the suggestion of Senator Charles McNary (Republican), Oregon, Thompson also proposed exempting all paper eligible for redemptive by Federal Reserve banks and where maturity is not in excess of nine months.

Objections to the bill came yesterday from two sources, with Henry I. Harriman, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, announcing that he would appoint a special committee of business men to meet here during the week to consider the measure.

Doubt Constitutionality.

William C. Breed, of New York, counsel for the Investment Bankers Association group of New York, New Jersey and Connecticut, said in a statement that if the bill is adopted as it stood before House and Senate committees they would "constitute an interference to honest business."

Breed contended that unless the bill was amended to reduce some of the "liability upon directors of corporations" it was "doubtful whether any responsible men would be willing to retain directorships in the corporations of the country which require the issue of any securities for future financing."

He maintained there was doubt of the constitutionality of imposing "such an extensive liability" upon directors.

Harriman voiced an objection to the speed with which the Senate and House committees have considered the administration bill.

Merchant Gets Thief's Coat in Balking Theft

St. Joseph, Mo., April 3 (A.P.).—Frank Hershfield, manager of a clothing store, saw a man grab a suit of clothing, hide them under his coat, and go out the door. He followed and caught up with the thief.

A scuffle followed and Hershfield came out with both of the stolen suits and the shoplifter's overcoat as well. The thief escaped.

Scores Homeless; Mississippi Rises

Tributary Streams Give Promise of Exacting Further Damage.

Memphis, Tenn., April 3 (A.P.).—Tributary streams, which have made hundreds temporarily homeless in the Mississippi Valley today, while the big river itself continued to rise threateningly.

The Tallahatchie River and Cassidy Bayou in Mississippi, constant menaces in the delta country, have invaded sections of Sumner, Webb and Swan Lake and threatened to spread further.

Approximately 10,000 acres of farm land containing more than 100 homes in Dyer and Lauderdale counties in west Tennessee were inundated by the Forked Deer and Obion Rivers.

seized by the agents of the Department of Justice and yesterday's legislation devised to fit such a case.

The resolution did not pass yesterday without some decided opposition.

Representative Loring Black (Democrat), of New York, declared: "This is a most dangerous piece of legislation."

Representative Kvale (Farmer-Labor), of Minnesota, saw in the proposal a censorship of the press.

Unfairness Charged.

In his report on the measure, Chairman Sumners of the Judiciary Committee said: "It is highly essential that leaks from confidential official records and communications not occur and that business or commercial reports purporting to be disclosures from such documents not be circulated."

Representative MacFadden (Republican), of Pennsylvania, charged the State Department had never been frank and fair in its information and said the measure reminded him of the war period, "when we were not permitted to understand what the State Department was trying to do."

A similar bill was introduced last April 22, but failed of approval in the Senate. The new phase of the present measure is intended to apply strictly to diplomatic codes of this Government.

Actual Drafting Is Started On Program for Railways

Roper, Eastman and Splawn Expect to Have Economy Bill Ready for President Roosevelt Before End of This Week.

(Associated Press.)
The definite drafting of legislation to carry through the administration's idea for railroad coordination was begun last yesterday with calls for decreased operating costs and a minimum discharge of employees sharply accentuated.

Before the week's end Secretary Roper, Joseph B. Eastman, an Interstate Commerce Commissioner and Dr. W. W. Splawn, transportation expert, expect to have a complete bill ready to lay before President Roosevelt.

After two extended conferences yesterday, at which labor, railroad security holders and officials of the carriers had their first full view of the various proposals submitted, one of the President's aids said the conference stage had passed and the writing stage begun.

Asked by newspapermen whether the objections of Donald Richberg and A. P. Whitney, representing the Railway Labor Executives Association, that the consolidation plan would mean the laying off of some 350,000 men, were insurmountable, one of those close to the President replied in the negative.

The program is now envisioned as described as "coordination" rather than consolidation, with emphasis upon economies. The definite impression was given that where this trimming of expenses involves discharge of men, a counterproposal would be offered to provide for them.

Loree Seeks Elimination Of Wasteful Practices

Claiming that the elimination of wasteful practices, such as unnecessary passenger service and, superfluous rail mileage, would aid railroads in overcoming their present condition, "which has come to be recognized as acute and warranting emergency treatment," L. F. Loree, president of the Delaware & Hudson Railroad Co., who was in this city yesterday, advocated that "the public should have a reduction in both passenger and freight rates."

Mr. Loree outlined the savings to the railroads if they reduced their stock of locomotives and cars, a great many of which he claimed were obsolete. Savings could also be effected, he claimed, if up-to-date units of machinery and tools were substituted for obsolete machinery.

In the neighborhood of $100,000,000 per year might be saved annually by this Nation's railroads through a revision of working agreements with various branches of railroad labor, he asserted.

"The present schedules are the result of an accumulation of rules and agreements adopted over a long period of years and to apply to conditions far different than at present. They contain many provisions for payment for time not worked and many provisions that hamper and obstruct management in the efficient operation of the railroads. In many instances, they go so far as to operate to the disadvantage of the employees and should be scrapped and built up anew," he explained.

"Taxation is and has been a stone around the neck of the railroads, the same, if not to a greater degree than other industries or individuals. Railroad property investment has increased 148 per cent since 1900, while its taxes have increased 800 per cent during the same period. We must look to a reduction all along the line and estimated at 25 per cent, it would mean $200,000,000 of savings each year," the railroad executive added.

45,000 Children Study After Quake Vacation

Los Angeles, April 3 (A.P.).—For the first time since the southern California earthquake of March 10, Long Beach's 30,000 school children returned to classes today, meeting on school grounds and athletic fields, in parks and other places. At the same time more than 15,000 pupils of Los Angeles resumed study at thirteen schools closed since the quake.

Not a single building in the $12,000,000 Long Beach school system is considered safe enough for use until repairs are completed, and school officials estimate two-thirds of the structures will have to be razed.

FARMERS' MORTGAGE AID BILL INCLUDED IN ROOSEVELT PLAN

foreclosures during the next two years. The balance of $200,000,000 would be loaned to farmers to refinance their floating current debts other than mortgages.

An appropriation of $50,000,000 also is called for as a direct loan to the Federal Land Banks, to reinforce their capital structure.

To Refinance Projects
Another $50,000,000 would be authorized through R. F. C. loans to refinance drainage, levee and irrigation projects now in difficulties.

The central issues of $200,000,000 would be at 4 per cent, and the farm mortgages, now usually carried at 6 per cent, would be refinanced on the basis of 4 1/2 per cent.

These new bonds would be exchanged through the machinery of the land banks for existing mortgages. With the safeguard that the exchange shall be limited in every case to a maximum of 70 per cent of the "net value" of the land and buildings. These values would be fixed by new appraisals in each case, a phase of the program which would give employment to thousands of men throughout the country.

Formula Is Described.

The formula for arriving at normal value was described yesterday by Director Morgenthau. The average money yield per acre over a period of some 40 years prior to the war inflation would be computed for each farm. This figure then would be regarded as 5 per cent of the value of the acre. On this basis the value could be amortized in 20 years. The new bonds, however, will be run for 40 years.

The bonds would be tax exempt and would be sold in denominations as small as $25. Public subscriptions would be received through the postal system, under a plan suggested by Mr. Morgenthau, but not yet in the bill. This arrangement would require a special act amending the land bank measure.

Gradual Liquidation.
The Federal Land Banks have outstanding approximately $1,150,000,000 in farm mortgage bonds. Mr. Morgenthau estimates that about the same percentage of defaults prevails as are outstanding the bonds of the Joint Stock Land Banks. The aggregate of the latter bonds outstanding was placed at $460,000,000. The new program contemplates the gradual liquidation of the bonds of the Joint Stock Land Banks and consolidation of their functions in the new Farm Finance Agency.

Mr. Morgenthau explained that when the finance bill is passed the administration policy will be to care for the individual mortgage holder first, to insure the income of those holding defaulted mortgages. Next the holdings of banks, insurance companies and similar agencies will be handled.

Sum for Interest Black.
A sum of $15,000,000 is to be appropriated for the Federal Land Banks to cover the slack between prevailing interest rates and the new 4 1/2 per cent rate. This sum is in addition to $50,000,000 authorized to enable the bank to defer the 1 per cent amortization payments during the next five years.

The bill, if enacted into law, would make available new R. F. C. funds to enable farmers to pay their delinquent taxes and to meet other overdue obligations, including equipment purchases, rentals, grocery and mail accounts, and unsecured bank loans.

The bill also contemplates that farmers shall make considerable use of the negotiated settlements between debtor and creditor, as authorized in the bankruptcy revision bill last session. It is hoped that these negotiations will serve to write off much of the dead values in the present farm mortgage structure.

Special Emergency Loans.

Another provision of the bill would authorize special emergency loans direct to farmers by the Farm Loan Commissioner, on first or second mortgages on land, chattels, or crops. Such loans would be limited to $5,000 to each individual, and in no case more than 75 per cent of the normal value of the property pledged.

Although the measure must be approved by the Banking and Currency Committee, the Senate Agriculture Committee considered the new plan in executive session late yesterday afternoon. Only four copies of the bill were available to the Senate committee members as this session began.

The banking and currency subcommittee in charge of the bill is headed by Senator Robert F. Wagner, of New York. He said the bill will be taken up for consideration this morning.

Franklin D. Roosevelt.
THE WHITE HOUSE, APRIL 3, 1933.

These negotiations will serve to write off much of the dead values in the present farm mortgage structure.

Special Emergency Loans.

Another provision of the bill would authorize special emergency loans direct to farmers by the Farm Loan Commissioner, on first or second mortgages on land, chattels, or crops. Such loans would be limited to $5,000 to each individual, and in no case more than 75 per cent of the normal value of the property pledged.

30-HOUR-WEEK BILL DEBATED AT CAPITAL

Senator Black Holds Millions of Jobless Would Share Its Benefits.

(Associated Press.)
The 30-hour-week bill, which, its advocates say, will return 6,000,000 jobless to employment through national sharing of work, yesterday began a doubtful legislative journey at both ends of the Capitol.

The five-day week, six-hour day bill of Senator Black (Democrat), Alabama, was made the unfinished business for the Senate and debated the entire afternoon, although it will be laid aside temporarily when the farm relief bill is ready for floor consideration, either late today or tomorrow.

In the House the Labor Committee approved unanimously a similar measure by Representative Connery (Democrat), Massachusetts. It would permit the Secretary of Labor, however, to exempt labor employed in processing, packing, and canning of perishable products where a scarcity of workers would make it impossible to apply the shorter work week.

The Alabama proposal would bar interstate shipment of commodities produced or manufactured in any mine, quarry, mill, cannery, workshop, factory or manufacturing establishment where employees worked more than 30 hours a week. It would not apply to railroads, farms or general office employment.

During an explanation of the bill, Black said he would not oppose exemptions in cases where labor was unavailable, but said he would not want to exempt industries just before it would "cost a little more."

"Why cling to a system," he asked, "that brings 12,000,000 into idleness, while millions of others are working 12 and 16 hours a day?"

Senator Borah (Republican), Idaho, and Wagner (Democrat), New York, raised the constitutional question, but Black insisted the courts had ruled Congress had the power under the Interstate Commerce clause.

Cartridge in Tobacco Hurts Eye of Smoker

Fairview, Okla., April 3 (A.P.).—A 32-caliber rifle cartridge in his smoking tobacco may cost A. J. Quick the sight of one eye.

Quick had scooped the loose tobacco from his pocket and filled his pipe. An explosion followed, shattering the pipe and driving a fragment of the wood into Quick's eyeball.

No Beer in Louisiana Is Legal Before April 13

Baton Rouge, La., April 3 (A.P.).—Attorney General Jackson L. Porter ruled today that beer can not be legally sold in Louisiana until April 13 when repeal of the State prohibition law, recently voted by a special Legislature, becomes effective.

House Chiefs Plan To Tighten Control

Restoration of Rule Requiring 218 Petition for Vote Names Proposed.

(Associated Press.)
The House Democratic leadership has decided to strengthen the rules of procedure, liberalized in the last Congress, to clinch tighter the control of that branch's organization.

A proposal to restore the rule of requiring 218 members to sign a petition to get a vote on a bill held in committee was taken under consideration yesterday by the Rules Committee.

When Vice President Garner became Speaker in 1931, he permitted the petition number to be reduced to 145 to allow votes on prohibition repeal and beer measures blocked by dry dominated committees.

At his press conference yesterday Speaker Rainey said the "majority" or 218 rule "ought to be restored."

DISTRICT BEER BILL AGREEMENT REACHED

District Committee chairman on a question of "personal privilege."

He explained that the House except the Senate bill without change. On a standing vote he was defeated, 113 to 62, and on a roll-call vote, 195 to 150. Then Chairman Mary R. Norton, of the House District Committee, secured the floor. She moved to send the measure to conference. Her motion carried.

"Off Sale" Licenses.
As modified by conferees, the Gore amendment is now definitely limited to Federal property in the District, whereas its original form might have applied to Government property anywhere. The Commissioners are given discretionary authority to license such sales. In the case of Capitol sales, they undoubtedly would be governed by the wishes of House and Senate.

Representative Loring Black, Jr. (Democrat), New York, one of the conferees, protested "off sale" licenses for brewers, but the provision for one "off sale" for each brewer was allowed to stand.

Conferees were unable under the law to restore the language sanctioning sales to motorists parked in their cars on private property at barbecues.

This provision was stricken from the bill in the Senate on motion of Senator Arthur Capper (Republican), Kansas. Conference restoration was proposed, but ruled improper.

Senators Senator Tydings, Senator McNary, Senator Hamilton, Lewis (Democrat), Illinois, and Robert D. Carey (Republican), Wyoming, serving with Mrs. Norton and Mr. Black as House conferees were Representatives Palmer (Democrat), Maryland, and Representative Baker and Whitney, of New York, Republicans.

SEEKS PACT AMERICAN-IRELAND TRADE PACT NEAR

Conclusion of Treaty Hinges on Power Being Given to Roosevelt.

(Associated Press.)
The United States and the Irish Free State are about to conclude a reciprocal trade agreement, it became known here yesterday. Secretary of State Cordell Hull admitted that Senator Joseph Connolly, minister of lands and fisheries, had formally approved the administration with the view of concluding such an agreement.

However, it was pointed out that conclusion of this agreement, as well as other agreements with other nations, is contingent upon Congress voting the President the arbitrary power to make such special agreements. The first step toward obtaining this authority for the President has not yet been made, but it is now in process of preparation and should be ready for congressional action within the next fortnight.

In the event of such authority being delegated to the President, the United States will gladly embark upon a reciprocal trade basis with the Irish Free State even in advance of the economic conference which is primarily destined to encourage such helps to trade.

Senator Connolly will shortly leave for Boston, but will return here again before he returns to Dublin.

Yesterday the Secretary of State and British Ambassador Sir Ronald Lindsay conferred on the purview of the forthcoming economic conference.

The conversations revolved principally around the international efforts to raise commodity prices. The joint statement from both declared:

"The informal conferences concerning world economic conditions continued today, ranging over the general subject of world price levels."

Senator Connolly yesterday delivered a lecture on "Ireland's Present Position in World Affairs" at the Catholic University of America. Previous to the lecture he was the guest of university friends at a dinner at the Mayflower.

Senator Connolly was sent to the United States by the Irish government to make arrangements for redeeming in full the Irish government bond issue floated here in 1920-21. His return to address the university was in the nature of an explanation of the use to which the loans he advocated twelve years ago have been put.

AMERICAN-IRELAND TRADE PACT NEAR

Conclusion of Treaty Hinges on Power Being Given to Roosevelt.

(Associated Press.)
The United States and the Irish Free State are about to conclude a reciprocal trade agreement, it became known here yesterday. Secretary of State Cordell Hull admitted that Senator Joseph Connolly, minister of lands and fisheries, had formally approved the administration with the view of concluding such an agreement.

However, it was pointed out that conclusion of this agreement, as well as other agreements with other nations, is contingent upon Congress voting the President the arbitrary power to make such special agreements. The first step toward obtaining this authority for the President has not yet been made, but it is now in process of preparation and should be ready for congressional action within the next fortnight.

In the event of such authority being delegated to the President, the United States will gladly embark upon a reciprocal trade basis with the Irish Free State even in advance of the economic conference which is primarily destined to encourage such helps to trade.

Senator Connolly will shortly leave for Boston, but will return here again before he returns to Dublin.

Barry Again Loses In Freedom Fight

Court of Appeals Affirms Decision Slayer Must Stay in St. Elizabeths.

The District Court of Appeals yesterday affirmed a recent decision of Justice Oscar E. Loring, in the District Supreme Court, in refusing to order the release of Paul DuVerney Barry from Howard Hall, ward for the criminally insane at St. Elizabeths Hospital.

Barry had sought his release through a habeas corpus, claiming that his treatment at the hospital had restored him to sanity. His petition was opposed by hospital authorities headed by Dr. John E. Lind, head of Howard Hall.

Barry was tried for murder in 1923. His defense was insanity, and a jury found him to be of unsound mind. In seeking to overturn his conviction, Barry, through Attorney Foster Wood, attempted to have a jury impeached to try him on the sanity issue, but Justice Loring held that there was no law providing for a jury trial on a writ of habeas corpus.

SCOTT SIBBORD AUCK WCTU TELS STORY

Young Woman Accuses Six,
Including Man Tried on Capital Charge.

Decatur, Ala., April 3 (A.P.)—Under vigorous cross-examination, Mrs. Victoria Price, 23, of Huntsville, Ala., today clung to her story that six Negroes attacked her aboard a freight train two years ago, and that Heywood Patterson, one of nine indicted in the "Scottsboro case," was one of the six.

Samuel S. Leibowitz, of New York, who offered his services in defending the Negroes to the international labor defense which had employed three other attorneys, questioned the woman on a mass of details covering a three-day period prior to the alleged attack.

Calm through the recitation of details on direct examination, Mrs. Price frequently showed flashes of temper as she answered Leibowitz's questions.

Meanwhile Patterson, flanked by National Guardsmen, sat stoically behind the counsel table, showing little interest in the proceedings in which his life is at stake.

Although exhaustive preparations had been made for the flight over, the actual carrying out of the test was in a measure accidental. When the two ships went up the purpose of the fliers was only to attempt by old-fashioned methods to gain the honor of being the first to reach the top.

The two airplanes flew to an altitude of 35,000 feet (about 6.6 miles) in 30 minutes. At the peak they found a wind velocity of 60 miles an hour.

Lieut. McIntyre apparently suffered considerably from frost, but Low Clyde was fit and cheerful when he landed after the momentous journey.

The two airplanes flew to an altitude of 35,000 feet (about 6.6 miles) in 30 minutes. At the peak they found a wind velocity of 60 miles an hour.

Lieut. McIntyre apparently suffered considerably from frost, but Low Clyde was fit and cheerful when he landed after the momentous journey.

Although exhaustive preparations had been made for the flight over, the actual carrying out of the test was in a measure accidental. When the two ships went up the purpose of the fliers was only to attempt by old-fashioned methods to gain the honor of being the first to reach the top.

6.6 Miles Up

Fliers in 2 Planes Become
First to Gaze Down on Mount Everest.

Purnea, India, April 3 (A.P.)—Two airplanes sailed across the summit of Mount Everest today and for the first time in history men looked down on the highest mountain in the world.

The feat was accomplished by the Marquis of Clydesdale, accompanied by Lieut. L. V. Stewart Blacker and by Flight Lieut. D. F. McIntyre, who had with him S. B. Bonnett, an expert photographer.

The photographer succeeded in taking a number of pictures which, it was hoped, would provide an authentic record of the conquest of the 29,141-foot mountain on the sides of which numerous men have perished attempting by old-fashioned methods to gain the honor of being the first to reach the top.

ROOSEVELT OFFERS OIL COMPROMISE

Declines to Advise Closing of Flush Pools Pending Legislation.

(Associated Press.) President Roosevelt yesterday made his own compromise between different groups in the industry recommending a ban on the interstate shipments of illicitly produced oil and the divorcement of oil pipelines engaged in interstate commerce from other branches of the industry.

The prohibition of shipments in interstate and foreign commerce was one of the recommendations made by the majority groups which attended the governors' oil conference here last week.

The divorcement of oil pipelines was urged by an independent producers' group, headed by John B. Elliott, of Los Angeles, which fought against almost everything that the others stood for.

Mr. Roosevelt made his views known in a letter to the governors of 17 oil producing States.

He told them he favored also another resolution by the majority group, composed of representatives of government, the major oil companies and some independents. This was that the Chief Executive require strict enforcement of the Federal gasoline tax and the collection of additional tax to be levied in the future by the Bureau of Internal Revenue.

The major groups also wanted Mr. Roosevelt to ask Congress for legislation authorizing the appointment of a Federal arbiter to aid the oil industry in stabilizing itself. The President's letter made no mention of this.

There was a definite refusal to accept the majority recommendation that he ask the governors of California, Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas and New Mexico to close all flush pools until April 15. He declined also to ask the governors of the principal producing States to make adequate conservancy legislation.

He said the latter might "be regarded as infringing on the sovereignty of the States." Mr. Roosevelt said that he was prepared to recommend the legislation banning interstate shipments of illicitly produced oil.

He said he felt the request of the latter for "emergency legislation" divorcing the pipeline was "reasonable" and that "such legislation should be enacted as early as date as possible."

Mrs. Wright Seeks Juvenile Judgeship

Forest Hills Citizens Association Wants Schools'

Funds Restored. Mrs. Leslie B. Wright last night formally announced her candidacy for judge of the juvenile court at the meeting of the Forest Hills Citizens Association. Mrs. Wright has been active in school and child welfare activities.

The association asked the Senate Committee on District Appropriations to restore appropriations recommended for the building of the new Woodrow Wilson High School and other needed school construction work.

The association also asked for a reassessment of property in the District, contending that the present assessed valuations are too high.

"conditioning camps" for about two weeks before they are put to work. In these camps they will be given physical examinations and daily setting-up exercises. They will also be required to do forestry work on the work they are to do. At the end of two weeks they will be sent into the forests to work for $1 a day and their board.

The jobs army will be recruited in the vicinity of the work to be done, to save transportation costs. It will be housed and fed under the direction of the War Department, which will also attend to transportation to the scene of the work.

The selection of Fechner, who is vice president of the International Machinists' Association, as director of the army, is significant in view of labor's objection to the bill when it was pending in Congress. In addition to his union affiliations, Fechner has lectured at Harvard, Dartmouth and other colleges on labor problems. He has been active in labor organizations for 35 years, and has held his post with the Machinists' Association for the last 20 years.

The Interior Department will be represented in the reforestation work by Horace L. Albright, director of the park service of the department. Col. Duncan K. Major, Jr., of the general staff, will represent the War Department, while a Labor Department representative will be present.

Those who attended the conference yesterday were the representatives of the departments, Mr. Fechner, John D. Coffman, fire control expert of the Forest Service, William G. Howard, director of land and forests of the New York State Conservation Department, Maj. R. Y. Stuart, chief forester of the Forest Service, C. M. Granger, assistant chief forester, and W. Frank Parsons, of the Red Cross, an American Public Welfare Association of Chicago.

The Federal Diary

By GEORGE D. RILEY

They're off! N. F. E. offers trophies for advanced and intermediate classes in Federal News' chess tournament begun last evening at Federal Clubhouse, 1515 Sixteenth street northwest.

WASHINGTON Government employees need no longer fear summer's blasting rays. Summer will be as nothing this year. Accordingly, they have removed the kiosk on the Avenue and the District budget has deleted a tiny item of $5,000 for operation of the Monument swimming pool where Federal workers went to escape heat of other days when it became necessary to close the department.

The House today will jam the District budget through. The only hope Government employees, who looked to the Monument Pool for heat relief, have is when the Senate holds hearings.

Besides, youngsters will swim. It is the only exercise some of them can enjoy. When they can get it in safe places many will be drowned in the dith of creeks and rivers.

District water consumers have supplied themselves with water, the Government has received its water fee and $700,000 surplus has resulted. Is it because Government employees' and children's recreation at Monument pool would be too expensive at $5,000 for a season that the pool operation has gone by the board?

Monument pool is the only place where Government workers have been able to go without paying. It is in the shadow of the largest building. It is the one place workers thought of when the departments, disgorged its sweltering humanity in the heat of the summers. It has been an institution 25 years. No charge has been made in recent years for its comfort.

Monument pool accommodates the largest area in the city. The pool at Georgetown is small and remains full to overflowing. The Roosevelt pool is no facility for the central section and the Howard pool has its own problems.

Somewhat the Federal Diary can not believe Mr. Roosevelt knows this small item has been blasted from the District budget.

FOWLER BARKER, assistant chief, aeronautics trade division, Commerce, began acquiring his knowledge of aviation at an early age. He was going to high school in Oakland, Calif., when the United States entered the war.

He was 17. He tried to enlist in the U. S. air forces, but they were too far apart for his age.

Young Barker crossed the bay at San Francisco and the British Royal Flying Corps. They sent him up to Victoria, then Toronto, then back to Texas, and in turn to Toronto and over to England.

At those places he received his flight training. He was attached to Pursuit Squadron No. 87 and was a member of that organization in France when it was changed from the Royal Flying Corps to the Royal Air Force. He was in front-line duty when the armistice was signed.

He says he was neither shot down nor did he receive confirmation for any victories. No hits. No runs. And no errors.

After the war he returned to the United States and enrolled at Oregon State College at Corvallis, where he made his way through school by barnstorming in the various aviation companies from the time he left school until he went with the Department of Commerce in 1926.

Sunday (did you hear about it?) he was thrown from a high-spirited horse in Howard County, Md. He was not injured—as far as it is possible for him to mention.

Met our friend, Ora E. Haines, Patent Office, who tells us the Capital City Spelling Club, composed largely of Government employees, will go to Baltimore the evening of April 28 to do battle with the Western Spelling Club. The Washington team has won five of eight contests with Baltimore in the semiannual contests.

HIGHER GAS TAXES SOUGHT BY POLLARD

Would Have Capital's Levies Raised "In Fairness to Surrounding Area."

Richmond, Va., April 3 (A.P.).—Gov. Pollard today indicated that if surrounding States and the District of Columbia will consent, he will recommend a substantial decrease in the automobile license tax and an increase of 2 cents in the gasoline tax for roads.

In a speech the governor's tentative plan is an appeal to Congress to increase the gas tax levy in the District of Columbia in fairness to Maryland and Virginia, whose motor fuel dealers now are suffering losses in trade because of the low rate in the District.

The governor pointed out that cooperation on the part of the District, Maryland, West Virginia, Kentucky, Tennessee and North Carolina is necessary for action on the plan. He asserted those living within 50 miles of the borders of those States and the District comprise nearly half of the State's population.

Under his plan the gas tax increase would balance the cut in the license levy, which might be as much as 40 per cent. Some of the surrounding States already have gasoline taxes in excess of the 5 cents tax in Virginia, and the increase in this State would bring Virginia to the higher level of those States.

The gasoline tax is a fairer levy than the license tax," the governor said. "Its burden is in direct ratio to the amount of driving done on the roads, while the license tax is fixed, and the man who uses his car only a little is taxed as heavily as the man who drives every day in the year."

He presented the license fee amounts to approximately $5,000,000, and the gas tax revenue about $12,000,000. A 40 per cent reduction in license taxes would reduce to 43 cents a hundred miles the present rate. The present rate is 70 cents.

representative of courage and discretion. When he returned to the United States he was sent as President Harding's special representative to the Dominican Republic and brought about the evacuation of the American marines there. He is generally credited with having written the Central American treaties of peace and amity of 1923 which are the most constructive diplomatic agreements since the Monroe Doctrine. By these treaties the former incentive to revolution and dictatorship in Central America was removed.

Mr. Welles is known to have declined ambassadorships to Argentina, and to Cuba as well. Mr. Franklin D. Roosevelt and he have the same godmother, Mrs. Henry Parrish, of New York, and he was one of the attendants at the wedding of the President and Mrs. Roosevelt.

The book which the new Assistant Secretary has written on the Dominican Republic is regarded as the most authoritative work ever written on the republic.

The President also nominated yesterday Claude G. Bowers, of New York, as Ambassador to Spain. The former Assistant Secretary of State, Francis White, is reported to be under consideration as Ambassador to Cuba.

The chief of the protocol of the White House, Warren Delano Robbins, cousin of the President, is believed slated for American Minister to Canada.

Joseph W. Woodruff, of Nebraska, was nominated yesterday to be judge of the Eighth Circuit Court of Appeals, and Harry M. Dunning, of New York, to be collector of the port of New York.

Woodruff, a Federal district judge in Nebraska, was named to the bench by President Wilson. He was recommended for the new post by Arthur Mullen, of Omaha, at the time that Mr. Mullen recently refused the appointment to fill the vacancy in the Eighth Circuit.

Selection of Dunning, a Bronx man and intimate friend of the Bronx Democratic leader, Edward J. Flynn, was viewed at the Capitol as illustrating transfer of final word to New York City patronage from the hands of Tammany to the Bronx leader. Flynn, with his followers, supported President Roosevelt in the Chicago convention.

THE THEATER LAST NIGHT

NATIONAL

"WHEN LADIES MEET." John Golden. With the American Theater Society, present a new comedy. The story is set in the city of New York. The play is a comedy of manners. The play is a comedy of manners. The play is a comedy of manners.

With that characteristic American sense of humor, which is a blend of the old and the new, and a situation that has made her one of the contemporary theater's most engaging playwrights, Miss Rachel Crothers has not only fashioned a penetrating study in marital relationships in "When Ladies Meet," but has gone farther and betrayed a shrewd capacity for making two comedies grow where only one grew before.

That is to say that in the new work revealed to an enthusiastic Washington audience for the first time in the National Theater last evening, as one of the notable attractions of the American Theater Society's local subscription season, Miss Crothers presents the other side of the picture first sketched slightly and brilliantly in "The Husband's Go."

In the earlier play, it will be recalled, a husband met the challenge of an imported rival who had tagged his wife to Iowa from a gay and unsexed vacation. The climax of the drama hinged wholly on the husband's point of view and his native sagacity in coping with an situation.

In "When Ladies Meet," precisely the same idea is translated into terms of the feminine mind and viewpoint, with, of course, a slight variation in the plot. The play is a comedy of manners, and it is a comedy of manners. The play is a comedy of manners.

Miss Crothers' evident conviction that when ladies meet and one of the ladies happens to be the wife of a man who is a playboy, and who has a chance, is the latest of a considerable roster of his clandestine sweethearts, they will arrange it between them so that he shall profit nothing whatever from his predicament in which he has placed himself.

This is a conclusion that is as gayety

FIRST LADY HEARS CHOIR'S PROGRAM

A Capella Concert Is Given
Before Nearly 1,000
at Mayflower.

The A Capella Choir of the First Congregational Church presented last night in the grand ballroom of the Mayflower Hotel its annual concert of Lenten music, before an audience of nearly 1,000, headed by Mrs. Franklin Delano Roosevelt, Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen, Representative Edward W. Goswami, Countess Beecheny, Col. Lewis M. Howe, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Daniel, Mrs. Copley Amory, Mrs. Walter Tuckerman and Secretary Charles G. Abbott, of the Smithsonian Institution.

From the opening "A Mighty Fortress," the Luther militant hymn, set to music by Monson, to the "Glorious and Honour and Laud," which closed the program, it was one that continually increased in impressiveness and excellence of rendition.

Of the twenty selections sung, perhaps "The First Psalm" (LaFarge), and "Peace Be Unto You" (Trowbridge), sung by male voices, together with "The Lord Is Risen Today" (Billings-Clokey), and "Were You There" (Burleigh) were the outstanding on the regular program.

Responding to the enthusiastic applause, the choir reached the heights of anthem singing with Christensen's "Beautiful Savior," an encore which was sung with greater vitality and assurance than most of the other pieces. Just why some of the numbers, more secular than sacred, not to mention Lenten, were included is not clear, but regardless of their apparent strangeness in the program, there can be no reflection on the manner in which they were sung.

Although not always sure of themselves, and at times with a harshness of tone out of keeping with the general theme of the program, the choir must be given a great deal of credit for its work, due to a large degree to the indefatigable work of Leader Ruby Smith Stahl.

MARYLAND PASSES DRY VOTE AND BEER

Repeal Convention Will Be Held on September 12;
Idle Insurance Loses.

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md. (Tuesday), April 4. After much hickory, humping and hawing, the Maryland General Assembly last night put through a State-wide bill repealing the sale of beer, and also a measure setting up the necessary machinery for a special election and constitutional convention to ratify repeal of the eighteenth amendment. They were among the last measures to receive sanction, having been entangled in the jam of legislation caused by the nearly three days' deadlock of the Senate and House over the budget bill.

Delegates to the constitutional convention for repeal will be elected at a special election on September 12, and the convention will be held in Annapolis on October 19.

Long Session Held.

Although the legislative machinery worked in high gear throughout yesterday, the usual jam marked the closing hours, and it was not until early today that the Assembly finally broke up.

The bill to establish an unemployment insurance system got through the House, but met its doom in the Senate.

Important legislation caught in the eleven-hour jam, but which finally was passed included the $4,000,000 bond issue to widen both of the main highways leading from Baltimore to Philadelphia, refunding charges to come from a double tax on motor trucks rather than the original plan of a toll on the Harve de Grace Bridge and the administration gasoline tax distribution bill.

Finally Dies in House.

The bill to permit appeals from judges on new trial motions, after much passed by both houses during the day, was finally killed by the House. The action came suddenly. The bill had been bitterly fought by many leading attorneys. The Senate amended the measure, and the House refused to concur in the action.

Indications were that friends of the "Washington, Baltimore & Annapolis Electric Railroad" had rallied sufficient support in the House to pass the bill granting it two more years of exemption from all taxation, but the fate of the administration bill to open Potomac River waters to oyster dredgers during November and December was in doubt. Delegates from the southern Maryland counties felt they had marshaled sufficient votes to beat the measure.

The House was deadlocked on the railroad bill early yesterday, but when it came up as a special order last night, James J. Linn, Baltimore County Democratic floor leader, swayed the House to adopt a favorable committee report. The vote was 68 to 39. This was 3 more votes than the required constitutional majority, and supporters of the bill felt they would hold together.

Stonebraker Charges Dis- trict P.U.C. Aids Gas Com- pany in Rate Fight.

J. Harry Welch, Washington attorney, was elected president of the Bethesda Chamber of Commerce at the annual meeting last night at the Bethesda Country Building. Other officers elected were: Dr. Washington Waters, first vice president; Ralph Seibels, second vice president; John A. Overholt, secretary; S. Walker Bogley, treasurer, and 25 directors.

The chamber voted to reduce its dues to $5 from $10 and to sponsor a series of Sunday morning picture performances for the benefit of charitable undertakings in Bethesda and the county. Robert D. Hagner, John S. Fuika and W. O. Offutt were appointed an auditing committee to audit the books of the chamber.

Samuel E. Stonebraker, chairman of the public utilities committee, reported on gas rate reduction progress. He charged the District Utilities Commission is permitting postponement of hearings so the Chase National Bank can complete valuation work now being prepared by the firm of Stone & Webster in order that rates in the county can be maintained at their present or even a higher level. Mr. Stonebraker said that the Washington Gas Light Co. now charges its subsidiary companies in Montgomery County a wholesale rate higher than is charged retail customers in Washington.

ALTON C. BELL, 58, IS KILLED BY TRAIN IN ARLINGTON SUITS

Rites Tomorrow for Deputy
Clerk to Montgomery Commissioners.

Montgomery County Bureau of the Post.

5103 Conn. Ave., North Chevy Chase, Md. Telephone Wisconsin 4205.

Funeral services for Alton C. Bell, 58, deputy clerk of the Montgomery County commissioners and a director of the Farmers Banking and Trust Co. of Rockville, who was killed by a Baltimore & Ohio Railroad freight train yesterday near his home in Washington Grove, Md., will be held at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow. Burial will be in Rockville Union Cemetery.

According to reports to Montgomery County police at Rockville, Mr. Bell had taken a sister to the train about 6 a. m. yesterday and, after her train pulled out, he stood near the tracks until a fast freight came along several minutes later. As the train approached he ran down an embankment on which he was standing, according to F. R. Lake, of 3103 Monroe street northeast, a flagman of the train crew, and dived headlong in front of the locomotive.

The train, en route to Washington, was operated by Engineer Harry Hill, of Baltimore, and was in charge of Conductor W. E. Clark, of Relay, Md.

Mr. Bell, a lifelong resident of Montgomery County, formerly farmed near Laytonville. He served as deputy clerk to the county commissioners for the last 12 years. He had been a member of the Democratic State central committee for Montgomery County and was a Mason and a member of the Episcopal Church.

He had been in ill health for some time, and had been granted an indefinite leave of absence by the county commissioners because of the condition of his health.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Alice Hopburn Bell, three daughters, Mary Rebecca, Edith Alton and Clara Lou Bell, and three sisters, Mrs. Clara Mobley and Miss Lulu Bell, of Chevy Chase, and Mrs. Eva Barnsley, of Eastern Shore, Md.

WHITE HOUSE BEER PLAN IS ANNOUNCED

once "backed" a hat business. Never before in his life, she said, has she known ready-made clothes and looking ones to be so reasonable as this spring; but she added an admonition against the buying of sweatshop garments.

In New York, Mrs. Roosevelt pointed out, she had made an effort to find out through the Consumers' League the conditions and the wages paid workers of ready-made garments. She received delegations of labor people interested in this question. The list of ready-made goods made under proper conditions was supplied at that time, although Mrs. Roosevelt found many of the articles bearing certain firm names too expensive for her clothes budget. She pointed out that busy people like to buy their clothing ready-made.

Mrs. Roosevelt always keeps a careful clothes budget and has never spent nearly the $1,000 a year which the first Mrs. Woodrow Wilson held necessary as the proper wardrobe for the First Lady. It is recalled that this stand of Mrs. Wilson caused quite a furore in pre-World War days.

Mrs. Roosevelt will not buy a new costume for Easter, but will wear a dark blue silk dress with hat to match, part of her inaugural outfit, which she has not yet worn in Washington.

Mrs. Roosevelt, considered a good swimmer, looks forward to her daily swims this summer in the White House swimming pools, excavations for which have already begun.

As the newspaper women were entering the White House they met Mrs. Curtis Dall, daughter of President and Mrs. Roosevelt, ready for her ride in khaki breeches and soft shirt with a wide blue band tied in the back and holding her golden brown wavy hair in place. Her two children, Buzsue and Slatie, were with her, wearing brother and sister clothes, composed of lavender linen with coats of blue wool and blue berets to match. Slatie has not ridden in Washington, but she has a Shetland pony at Hyde Park which will be brought down for her later. Buzsue rides too, but always with someone else. One more horse is to be added to the White House horses at the Riding and Hunt Club, Pal o' Mine, the Mexican cow pony presented to John Roosevelt last year.

A brilliantly lighted birthday cake adorned the White House table last night and a number of additional guests were invited for the birthday party for John, 17-year-old son of the President and Mrs. Roosevelt. John's birthday came on March 13, but he was in school, so the festivities were postponed until last night.

The party of young people at the White House will be augmented on Friday by Franklin Roosevelt, Jr., and a party of friends who will come from Jekyll Island, Ga., with him. A buffet supper and party will be given that night and the young folk may dance. Yesterday morning Mrs. Roosevelt took Slatie and Buzsue to the Pan American Building and the children were delighted with the Astor fountain and the gold fish there.

Henry Roosevelt, the 18-year-old nephew of Mrs. Roosevelt, who is now a guest at the White House with his sister and brother, Eleanor, 13, and Daniel, 16, is of a serious turn of mind and has been visiting all the laboratories in Washington to get pointers in his researches in commercial chemistry.

Mrs. Roosevelt will go to New York on April 11 to attend the conference of the Woman's Trade Union League, of New York, of which she is a member. Clothing cost and conditions under which they are made will be among the subjects discussed.

Will on Card

Testament of Woman Who

Filing Problems.

The will of Mrs. Mary Kelsey, 24 years old, who committed suicide by hanging herself in her apartment at Ninth and I streets northwest, was filed for probate in the District Supreme Court yesterday. It gave all her property to Mrs. J. W. Odlin, of Darnwood, Md.

Mrs. Kelsey wrote the will on the top of a blue cardboard box. The instrument presented numerous filing problems to Theodore Cogswell, registrar of wills, for it was too large to fit in the regular filing shelves and was too stiff to bend.

It is not likely the validity of the paper will be upheld, because there were no attesting signatures attached.

FARM MORTGAGE AID.

For many years the Government has been financing agriculture. Aid has been extended in one direction and then another until the Government has come to be one of the foremost creditors of the farmer. There is nothing revolutionary, therefore, in President Roosevelt's program of farm mortgage relief. But it would carry the Government so far into the field of agricultural finance as to indicate the complete absorption of farm mortgages by Government funds within a few years.

The administration turned away from the plan to issue several billions of dollars worth of Federal bonds to take over farm mortgages. Yet the Government does not escape liability for the proposed bond issue by turning it over to the Federal Land banks. It merely uses an intermediary to raise the money, with the provision that the Government will guarantee interest on the bonds. The Government owns about 66 percent of the stock of the Federal Land banks and, is, therefore, ultimately responsible for them.

Under the President's plan a holder of a farm mortgage could sell it to a Federal Land bank. The bank could pay the mortgage holder by either a 4 per cent bond or in cash, but in no case could the price paid be more than the unpaid principal or 90 per cent of the "normal value" of the mortgaged land plus 20 per cent of the permanent improvements. The farmer's debt to the bank would then equal the amount which the bank paid to the mortgagee, and the new obligation would bear interest at not more than 4 1/4 per cent.

Success of the plan would obviously depend upon the directors of the Federal Land banks. Apparently they would be called upon to decide the "normal value" of mortgaged lands. A very liberal interpretation would undoubtedly result in the "unloading" of depreciated mortgages upon the land banks, while too rigid an interpretation might prevent a great majority of distressed farmers from receiving benefits. No doubt the banks can be relied upon to use discretion.

Various other forms of relief for farm debtors are contained in the bill. The Treasury is authorized to provide the Federal Land banks with $50,000,000, to repay the banks for reduction of interest on farm loans they now hold, and to carry along farmers who are unable to meet their obligations in the next five years. A total of $200,000,000 is provided for loans to farmers; on first or second mortgages on land, chattels or crops, principally for the purpose of enabling farmers to repurchase homes and farms lost through foreclosure during the last year. Also a loan of $100,000,000 would be allowed for liquidation of the joint stock land banks.

This heavy burden upon the credit of the United States may be justified by the emergency. Farmers with mortgages contracted when prices were high are in a desperate plight. Fortunately the task of rehabilitating the farmer financially has been assigned to an established banking agency under Government control. If this undertaking is handled on a reasonable basis, the costs to taxpayers need not be large. President Roosevelt's proposal would throw a great responsibility upon the Federal Land banks. No doubt they are in a better position to carry the burden than any other agency.

PHILIPPINE TRADE.

Theodore Roosevelt does not attempt to pass judgment upon the Philippine independence act in his annual report as Governor-General of the islands, but he certainly gives the Filipinos something to think about. "The economic situation of the Philippine Islands," he says, "though it may seem far from a superficial glance, is perilous when studied." Without free imports to the United States the islands would be in chaos.

From their total trade the Philippines have a favorable balance of $2,000,000 pesos. But nearly all Philippine exports come to the United States. The trade of the islands with non-American countries leaves them an adverse balance of $2,000,000 pesos. The standard of living in the Philippines has been built up so much under American guidance that it is considerably higher than standards in neighboring countries. Hence, the Filipinos are at a disadvantage in trading with any country other than the United States.

That is not the worst of the situation. Of the Philippines' exports 83 per cent is sugar, virtually all of which comes to the United States. The Philippines are almost a one-export country. If they tear themselves away from the United States by accepting the Hawes-Cutting independence act, their market for sugar will be cut off. Gov. Roosevelt points out that without their sugar exports in 1932 the islands would have had an adverse balance of trade amounting to $9,000,000 pesos.

A good deal of attention was given to the extension of markets and the development of new industries within the islands during Gov. Roosevelt's administration. But there is no possibility of the Philippines marketing their sugar outside of the United States. Java produces sugar more cheaply than they do. As soon as the Filipinos adopt the independence act, their sugar industry will face destruction.

During the year the Philippine government took a number of steps toward strengthening its tariff. Its first act was to eliminate the effects of depreciated currency by levying ad valorem duties according to the par value of currencies rather than the exchange value. An antidumping act was passed. A number of specific rates were increased or new rates applied with a view to protecting home industries and of giving American exports to the islands, which are admitted free, a preference over exports from other countries. The effect of these duties is to strengthen the economic tie between the United States and the Philippines.

Regardless of what the outcome of the independence controversy may be, the Philippines might attain a much stronger economic position by diversifying their interests. Philippine waters abound with fish, yet the people spend $500,000 pesos for imported fish. Coffee, poultry, tobacco, fruits, rice, wood and many other commodities that are now imported could be produced with ease in the islands. Unless the Filipinos can be diverted from the sugar industry into some of these channels, their political ambitions will continue to be a fantastical dream.

NO BUSINESS DICTATOR.

Widespread discussion of President Roosevelt's plan for Federal supervision of securities has resulted in two general conclusions. The first is almost unanimous approval of the measure's general objective, which is to require the widest publicity of facts concerning stocks and bonds offered for sale to the public. But the second reaction is skepticism concerning some features of the bill which seem to go far beyond its main purpose.

No legitimate interest can be injured by requiring all corporations offering securities to the public to set forth in detail the values behind such securities, the commissions paid in connection with their sale and other facts necessary to protect the public from fraudulent promoters and financial adventurers. This principle has been well recognized in the blue sky laws of the States, but the States have been extremely negligent in this field. It is to be hoped that the Government will be more successful in exposing shysters and crooks in the securities business.

One section of President Roosevelt's bill, however, departs entirely from this publicity method of supervising security issues. It would give the Federal Trade Commission authority to forbid any corporation to issue securities if, in the opinion of the commission, the business of the concern should be in an "unsound condition," or if its business should not be "based on sound principles." This is an astonishing grant of power that is in keeping with neither American tradition nor the spirit of the Constitution.

Under this proposal the Federal Trade Commission would have to pass judgment upon business ventures. In operation such a plan might prove intolerable. Shall a bureaucratic group in Washington be authorized to decide what companies shall be allowed to borrow money from the public? There is no standard of "soundness" that may be applied to all types of business concerns. In times like the present a large share of the companies doing business in the United States might be pronounced unsound by the application of bureaucratic rules.

The function of the Government in this field is to protect investors from fraud and misrepresentation and not to set itself up as a judge of a corporation's fitness to continue in business. No commission is wise enough to draw the line between "sound" and "unsound" business ventures. The Government can not guarantee that any business is sound. American business can not be directed in detail from Washington.

The measure should be so drawn as to make certain that in setting up a protective agency the Government does not throttle business with bureaucratic dictatorship.

REVISE THE RELIEF BILL.

Minority Leader Snell has put the House of Representatives in an embarrassing situation. When the Wagner bill, authorizing the expenditure of $500,000,000 for relief, was received from the Senate Mr. Snell asked that it be returned to that body on the ground that the Constitution had not been complied with. The House, which is always jealous of its authority over revenue matters, must now decide between upholding its traditional prerogatives or expediting a measure which President Roosevelt considers urgent.

The Constitution provides that "all bills for raising revenue shall originate in the House of Representatives." In practice this has come to include appropriation measures as well. Supply bills may not be revenue measures, but they have a vital relationship thereto and the House usually resents the initiation of any fiscal bill by the Senate. It is customary for the House to return such bills or to ignore them.

The attitude of the House in this case, however, is uncertain. President Roosevelt's urgent request for expedition of this bill may induce the House Democrats to surrender the rights of the House.

Representative Snell probably was not actuated solely by the desire to uphold the House's prerogatives. Many members of the lower chamber are opposed to the relief measure and will do all in their power to amend it. If the House should uphold Mr. Snell it would afford an excellent opportunity to rewrite the measure to eliminate some of its objectionable features.

No member of Congress will refuse to extend Federal aid to prevent starvation or suffering. But why should the Government put up a fund of $500,000,000 to encourage the States to dodge the task of relieving distress? Most of the States are as capable of raising money as is the Federal Government and they have less demand upon them. Of this total $300,000,000 would be handed out to the States as an outright dole, without regard for their ability to issue bonds of their own or to raise new taxes or to draw upon present funds. This invites extravagant spending at the expense of Federal taxpayers.

Some of the States are in need. Advances should be made to them in the form of loans, as the Government is now doing. The question of letting people starve does not enter into the issue. It is merely a matter of extending Federal relief where it is actually needed or of appropriating a vast sum that will cause the States to give up self-reliant policies and drain the purses of Uncle Sam. By adopting Representative Snell's resolution the House would have an excellent opportunity to rationalize the relief bill.

STATE DEPARTMENT STAFF.

The President has completed organization of the State Department by selecting Sumner Welles as Assistant Secretary. Mr. Welles is experienced in departmental affairs and has served with distinction in several important posts, notably in connection with the withdrawal of Marines from Santo Domingo. His thorough knowledge of State Department matters will enable him at once to assist Undersecretary Phillips, who has been burdened with an excess of routine.

Secretary Hull now has under his direction a most efficient staff, and will be free to devote his time to the shaping of the President's foreign policies. The selections of ambassadors and ministers as made thus far are fortunate. No doubt promotions in the service will increase the zeal of career men. Altogether, the Department of State is squaring away for solid accomplishment in its peculiarly difficult field of operation.

Until Congress comes across, public offices are to remain the public trust of the Hon. James A. Farley. As the ancient philosophers wrote on the walls of their humble wigwags, "He who tolith not in the desert shall be without sand for his spinnach."

The Department of Agriculture has perfected a new potato, the Chippewa, rich in vitamin A. Now for a little gravy from the R. F. C.

Unused efficiency may have caused the depression, but what caused the unused efficiency?

The old-fashioned agriculturist finds everything except pay dirt in the farm relief bill.

"BE FAIR," SAYS ADAMS

From the Boston Transcript.

Hon. Charles Francis Adams, president of the Union Trust Co. and until recently Secretary of the Navy, said in an address in Boston that party majorities at Washington are the hope of the Nation. He asked those present to be fair to "the gentlemen in Washington."

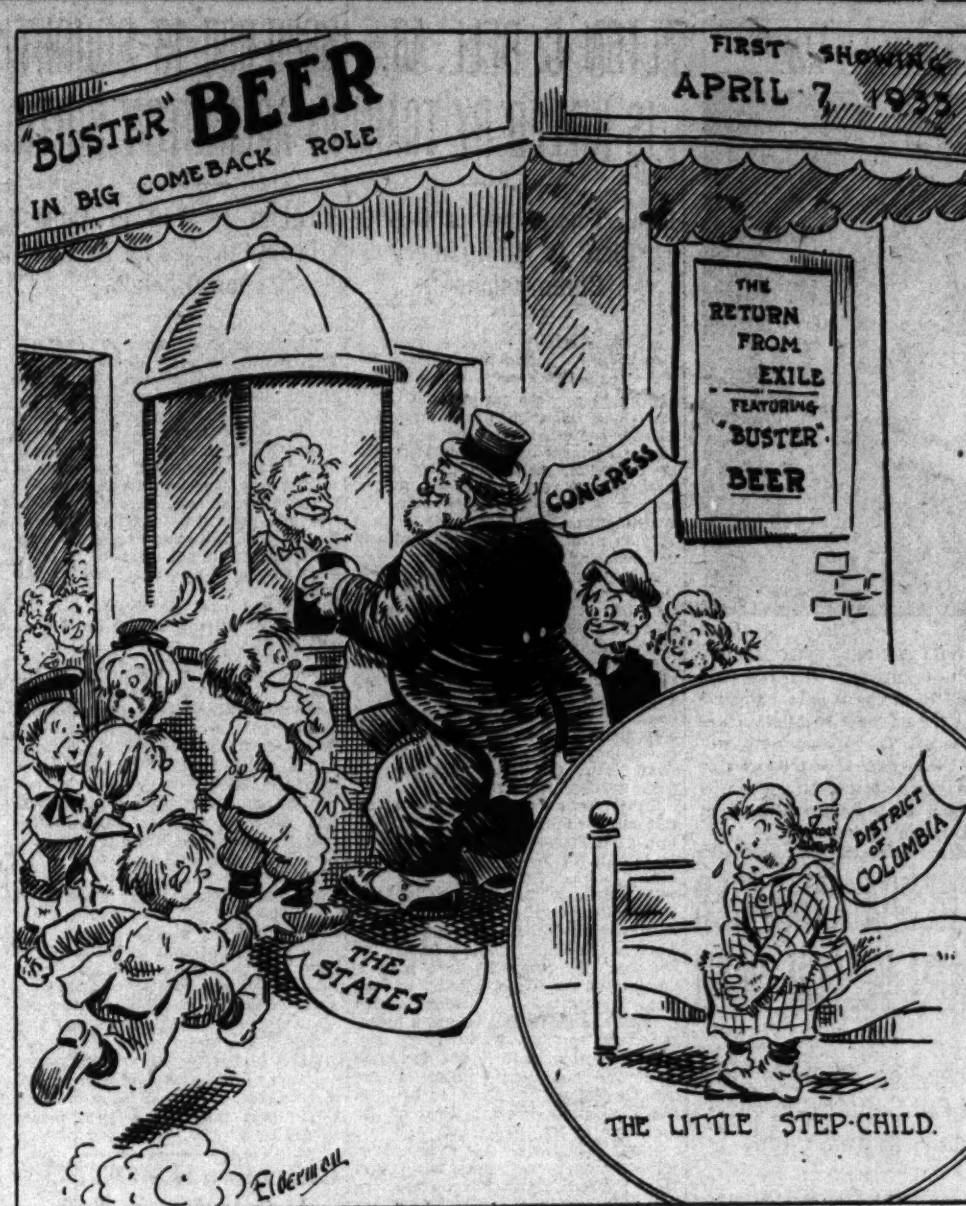

Mr. Adams was president of the exchange 21 years ago. He urged the need for loyalty from all citizens in their attitude toward the Government, "a loyalty such as is shown by the men of the Navy."

"One of the things most to be regretted in this country today is that the business interests—and Wall Street especially—understand so little of Washington that they are completely out of sympathy," he said. "It is to be regretted, also, that Washington, in turn, has so suspicious an impression of Wall Street."

He called Herbert Hoover "a great man, a great thinker, a great fund of information, who worked to do the best beyond all power of the imagination. We always felt the element of tragedy when we gathered for our Cabinet meetings," he said. "There was none of the jollity of Theodore Roosevelt's meetings; none of the peace of the Cabinet of quaint Calvin Coolidge. Think of Hoover carrying that great burden of economic unrest, day and night, and you will get the picture of the Hoover administration as we Cabinet officials saw it."

"I regard the United States Navy as the finest organization I ever knew; pure justice has picked the best men."

Lack of party control was the great stumbling block for the Hoover administration, Mr. Adams said. "It was a condition, stronger than any man in the world should have faced, and I am happy to see that President Roosevelt finds different conditions. In party majority lies his great hope and the hope of the Nation for the balancing of the budget and the passage of important legislation."

Little Cinderella.

PAUL HUDSON.

RALEIGH AND A COMMA.

The will of Diego, a son of Christopher Columbus, recently discovered in Spain, was first thought to cast doubt upon the generally accepted story that Sir Walter Raleigh first introduced smoking into Europe, says Tobacco Topics Magazine. This will, dated May 2, 1529, more than 60 years before Raleigh smoked his first pipeful of tobacco, disposed of a sum of money to a certain Antonio described apparently as "tobacco merchant of Lisbon." Now, closer examination of this document causes scholars to believe that the clause reads "Antonio Tobasso, merchant of Lisbon." The fame of Raleigh as patron saint of tobacco therefore seems to rest on the placing of a comma.

EARTHQUAKE.
When earthquakes come and buildings fall
And death and desolation stalk
Where happiness was wont to walk,
Who cares what prices brokers call?

When 'neath the foot the ground gives way
And terror reigns throughout the night;
When families from their homes take flight,
Who needs a banker's "aye" or "nay"?

Let but earth slip a foot or two,
Mere money loss flies out of mind.
Of what's important man will find
That he has glimpsed a closer view.

Court Serves Only to Make Injustice
Legal If Witnesses Tell Lies

By ROBERT QUILLEN

IF you have business in another man's yard, and the man's dog advances upon you with tail a-wag in apparent friendliness and then sinks his teeth in your leg, what will be your future reaction to the dog's signal of good will?

Will you ever trust him again? Will you ever again have confidence in his deceitful tail?

That is the penalty the liar brings upon himself. The truth he tells is questioned by those he has deceived.

Unfortunately, he never knows how much his mendacity costs him. He occasionally loses a friend, a patron or an opportunity, but nobody explains the loss and his vanity attributes it to something else.

It may not be true, as it seemed to David, that all men are liars; but an increasing number of people agree with Mark Twain's declaration that truth is a precious commodity which should be used sparingly.

Aged men can remember when decent and respectable citizens kept their word. A promise was a pledge of honor seldom broken. Truth was common place and taken for granted. Liars were disgraced.

Men still fight to defend their honor when caught in a lie, but truth has lost prestige. It isn't loved for its own sake as it once was.

Lying became respectable during the boom. High and low adopted the same rule: "Sell the stuff, and don't let truth interfere." People who used the word "honor" were old-fashioned cranks. "Putting it over" was the measure of smartness, and usually it meant fooling the gullible.

Bonds and stocks, real estate and play pretties were marketed by high-pressure salesmen who scorned truth as a handicap to good business.

Perhaps war propaganda revived the art of lying. Certainly the land has been flooded with mendacious propaganda ever since.

And now the piper is being paid. The people have lost faith. Having discovered that tooth paste won't improve their social status, as promised in the magazine ad, they wonder whether it will even clean teeth.

We can't reform our civilization without a new birth of honesty, for all of our institutions are built on man's faith in man. A civilization is no better than the men who compose it, and a man is no better than his word.

POLITICAL COMMENT

Protection of Investors.

Cincinnati Enquirer.
President Roosevelt's latest proposal, a bill to regulate the issuance of securities, is a well-meant and possibly a helpful step in correcting the abuses that have developed around the flotation of industrial and public securities. But it should not be considered a full remedy for those abuses. There is relatively little that Government can do toward protecting the investor. What can be done should be done, of course, but it would be unwise to rely too greatly on the proposed measure.

Soviet Is Still Difficult.

Kansas City Times.
Rumors that the Roosevelt administration is considering the possibility of a resumption of diplomatic relations with Russia lend additional interest to the possibility that the British government may sever its relations with the Soviet again. Since the conservatively minded national government assumed office in Great Britain a year and a half ago, friction has been developing once more between that country and Russia, but it seems to be approaching the breaking point directly as the result of the arrest of four British electrical engineers on charges of sabotage and the determination of the Russian authorities to try them on those charges.

Surplus Crop.

Cincinnati Enquirer.
The main thing raised on the farm these days is a lot of grief for the administration.

Macon Telegraph.

An Early Reversal.

St. Cloud (Minn.) Times.
During the recent campaign the Farmer-Labor party supported Franklin Roosevelt for President, and aided in giving him the majority of votes in Minnesota. It is rather peculiar that the congressmen elected on the Farmer-Labor ticket have so early refused to support the President, and that includes Senator Shipstead, elected four years ago. The Farmer-Labor voters who supported President Roosevelt must be asking why their representatives in Congress refused to support the man for whom they voted in November.

Going Ahead.

St. Louis Globe-Democrat.
If we want a leader who can improve the situation we must concede him a little radicalism. You can't make omelettes without breaking eggs.

Quitting the Philippines?

Houston Post.
Reports coming out of the Philippine Islands, and perhaps they are true, indicate that the inhabitants are not altogether enamored of the idea of complete independence.

It is out of the question for this country to guarantee independence to the Philippines once its authority is relinquished.

America must either stay or pack her belongings and get away for good and all, with no outstanding promises.

Contemplating the departure of United States sovereignty the more intelligent of the natives are indulging misgivings as to the wisdom of such a course, and happily the ultimate decision is in their hands.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Limiting the Rights of the Individual
Not the Whole Duty of Government.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In a recent speech to the American Chemical Society, Dr. Irving Langmuir, Nobel prize winner, said:

"I am in favor of a dictator—preferably the President, who has the confidence of the people—to limit working hours. In emergency times like these there is no place for talk of personal liberty. The whole theory of government is to limit the rights of the individual for the benefit of the whole country."

The disposition of gifted specialists to make reckless general statements like that is regrettable. They are very pernicious. Of course, we all know that civilization began when the first dictator many millenniums ago limited the rights of individuals in his family group to take what did not belong to them. But since then the most important function of government has been to fix the limit of denial of individual rights.

Loose talk by public thinkers about the incidental merits of the dictatorship form of government is to be deplored. If a perfect dictatorship could be handed on from generation to generation it might be best for human happiness, although even that is very doubtful. The interplay between the human element in the ruler and the ruled makes the chances exceedingly great that the beneficial functioning of such a government can not last more than a lifetime. Notwithstanding the inconvenience of constant civic agitation, a democracy is safer, because it is more plastic.

It would be a good thing if those who see much to admire in Mussolini and, like Dr. Langmuir, are tempted to glibly flirt with the dictatorship idea, would first try to answer the questions: "After Mussolini, What?" "After Stalin, What?" "After Hitler, What?"

FEDERALIST.

Average Farmer Just Like Other

Average Man, Says Mr. Lyle.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I notice that many newspapers state that the average farmer doesn't really know what he wants in the way of relief. Having spent a large part of my life in a farming community, I feel that I am in a position to enlighten these editors on what the average farmer really wants. He wants to be able to sell his products for the highest possible price, while at the same time be able to buy what he uses at the lowest price (including labor).

The average farmer is just as much to blame for this present plight as the bankers. During boom times, not being satisfied with being able to make a good living on the land then in his possession, he had to mortgage his home to purchase more land in order to keep up with his more wealthy neighbors. Not only that, there are many cases where farmers mortgaged their homes to get money to purchase a high-priced automobile, which they rode around in while neglecting their crops. Yet, whenever hard times hit the country this same class blame it on the Government and help to make conditions worse by electing egomaniacs to represent them in Congress.

Cost of Many Items Higher in Nearby Maryland Than in the District.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I am greatly interested in the letter in Friday's Post, signed "A Federal Employee." As a wife of an employee, I sincerely second everything this party wrote. I can add a few items which have not been reduced, maybe a penny or so. We live in nearby Maryland, just over the District line, have to pay two car fares, four in all, to go to town and return, which totals 36 cents for the trip. Gas for automobiles is higher here. Bread and milk are still high. Coal hasn't come down at all in price. Taxes are too high in Montgomery County. Yes, they reduced taxes but raised the valuation! Therefore the rate of taxes is still the same.

We pay $2 a month for 20 days' transportation for the high school pupils who must ride the school bus. That rate is higher than in the District of Columbia, too.

We have lived here eight years, and there has been no reduction in any of the things I have mentioned.

AN EMPLOYEE'S WIFE.

Beer Should Be Made Available in Suitable Places for Sale of Revenue.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: What was expected, has happened. The city's wisheads are all fussed up over where, construing the local beer law, we wets shall take our drinks with our eats.

The beer is constitutional—a stimulant which does not intoxicate. Why all this worry about where or how it is to be sold?

If socially and as a tax-raiser, the drinking of it is as important as we have been told, then the statute beer has not received fair treatment in the matter of licensing. It should have a place of its own. It should be sold in regular beer shops, and gardens suitable for its full enjoyment.

As at present planned the sale of beer will not by half yield as much revenue as it ought to.

Not the reworked, "manipulated" wools frequently used in inferior suits—but long, staple wools are woven by leading American mills into the fabrics for our Woodshire suits.

In this microscopic photograph, note the long fibered yarns that give the worsted cheviot suits in our Woodshire line their well covered, yet long-wearing appearance... inferior fabrics would show a short, rough, more loosely woven effect. Only fine, long fibered, carefully woven suitings are used in Woodshire suits.

639. YOU MUST BID.

UP in a Boston suburb, a Contract Club is holding a pair of tournaments for men, so eight of the wives of the players engaged in the tournament decided to have their own games on tournament nights with two teams of four meeting at their homes. It has been the custom for the husbands to join the wives later in the evening for refreshments. When they arrived recently they found a heated discussion in progress over the hand below:

It was too late, however, and the contract was played at two clubs. The result was a penalty of 2,000 points, East being set 5 tricks, vulnerable.

At the other table the hand was played at North at four spades undoubled, and East and West succeeded in defeating the contract 1 trick.

WHEAT VALUES GAIN ON CROP REDUCTIONS

Winter Variety Yield Likely to Be Smallest for

Chicago, April 3 (A.P.).—Wheat went skyrocketing today to within 1/2 cent of the peak prices attained just after the recent bank holiday period came to an end.

Today's renewal of soaring quotations accompanied authoritative unofficial reports that United States 1933 production of winter wheat would be the smallest since 1904, totaling but 371,000,000 bushels, compared with 462,000,000 last year. The reports estimated the present condition of the crop as only 61 per cent of normal, the lowest condition ever known and 21 points below a ten-year average.

Wheat closed strong at virtually the day's highest quotations, 1% to 1½c above Saturday's finish; corn, 1% to 1½c up; oats, ¼ to ½c advanced, and provisions, unchanged to a rise of 5 cents.

Adding impetus to the upshoot of values was word of a big decrease of 3,014,000 bushels in the United States wheat visible supply total. Bullish aspects of proposed farm legislation at Washington were also a stimulating influence. Trade was more active

One leading wheat expert said the striking feature of today's reports was the terrific crop losses shown in six States that usually have large production. These States—Kansas, Oklahoma, Nebraska and Colorado in one group, and Oregon and Washing-tion in another—contain 55 per cent of the acreage seeded last fall, and the present average condition is only 45, with a corresponding tremendous acreage abandonment. Part of the abandoned acreage in Oregon and Washington, he said, would be replaced with spring-sown wheat, but the acreage lost in the plains region was permanently out.

Corn and oats went upgrade with wheat. Both corn and oats established a new high-price record for the season.

Provisions were responsive to grain strength, despite weakness of hog values.

The Meanderer

Finds a Roman Striped Frock—Low Cost Cape Suit—New Hats and Dozens of Tricky Accessories.

Telephone questions on The Meanderer's column to The Washington Post, National 4205, Extension 19; or address The Meanderer, The Washington Post, inclosing self-addressed, stamped envelope for reply.

Roman stripes, with their gypsy-like gaiety, have edged into popularity in ribbons and scarfs, and now there appears in an F street shop a whole gown of this material. The stripes in this particular gown are on a light background, so that one may wear the gown under beige, gray or blue coats with harmonious effect. The silk is of a rough crepe, and, incredibly enough, is a Mallinson silk. The Meanderer says incredibly because the gown's price tag reads only $10.50.

A well-cut, well-fitting cape suit in three pieces in the F street shop showing the Roman striped dress is of wool crepe. The cape and skirt of the costume are of gray and the tailored jacket is of the lighter than navy blue, with buttons of blue and gray. This suit, for misses or small women, is the only one of its kind in the shop, and sells for $10.50.

"Flops" are just new hats—not mistakes or failures, as might be inferred. The brims of the hats are medium large, the Milan straw of which they are made is of soft quality, so that the irregular drape of the hats earns them the name of "floppers"—and they sell for only $4.98—in several nice colors, and black and white.

Flower-trimmed turbans, making use of velvet flowers in various colors will furnish an extra dressy hat to change the effect of a daytime or dinner dress. The turbans sell for $1.98. In the smart millinery salon of one of the smaller F street shops the Meanderer found the flowery turbans selling so reasonably, as well as several types of the Turkish fez which New York milliners insist upon giving high rank for spring. A military fez, known as the "rebel" has a corded trimming which gives it a soldierly air.

Plain, pull-on gloves of washable fabric, with wide gauntlet cuffs, whose only trimming is the small, picoté scalloped finish, come from one of the best glove houses this spring and arrive in an F street mail shop for just 59 cents. Several pairs of such gloves can be no mistake. The shopkeeper may choose from eggshell, gray, white or black. Other gloves with different cut and trimming are similarly priced.

The small, two-way stretch garment known as a "sleeve" for wear under the close-fitting gowns is shown for $1.98 in the shop featuring the gloves just mentioned.

Copies of an expensive cigarette case which will hold a pack of cigarettes have been placed on sale in an F street department store for $1. The cases are enameled, in a choice of several colors, are envelope shape, thin and flat, to avoid adding any bulk to the purse. The "Twenty-first Century Cigarette Case" is the name of this new container. In beige and brown the case is effective, and the red and black case, or all black, or green cases have many admirers.

New beaded neckwear in white and colors, with matching bracelets, has an effect of heavy lace. The beaded neckwear is more than an inch wide, lies flat on the neck, close-fitting and trim. Yellow, green, blue, black and white, red and other color ideas are used in the new bead wear. The bracelets are in band shape, many of which button in fitted fashion. A new slave link bracelet on which two initials may be engraved free of charge, is only $1 in the same department store's novelty jewelry section, where the Meanderer found the beadwear and the new cigarette cases.

Large dashing dots decorate some wide new ribbons that are popular for making bow-tie or Ascot scarfs. Dots on such ribbon may be black, or navy, brown or green.

Fifth Avenue Fashions

THE girl of school age is always delighted with little frocks of this type.

They slip on so easily. And incidentally, she can have several jumpers to wear with this suspender jumper, giving lovely changes to her wardrobe.

Probably one of the new yellow and brown tweed-like woolens, she'll want to fashion it. And for the gumption, plain yellow wool crepe is very smart.

Another bubble one would be nice, too, of white or yellow fine wale pique.

Style No. 3383 is designed for sizes 8, 10, 12 and 14 years.

Size 8 requires 1 1/2 yards of 39-inch material for dress, with 1 1/2 yards of 39-inch material for blouse. Price of pattern, 15 cents.

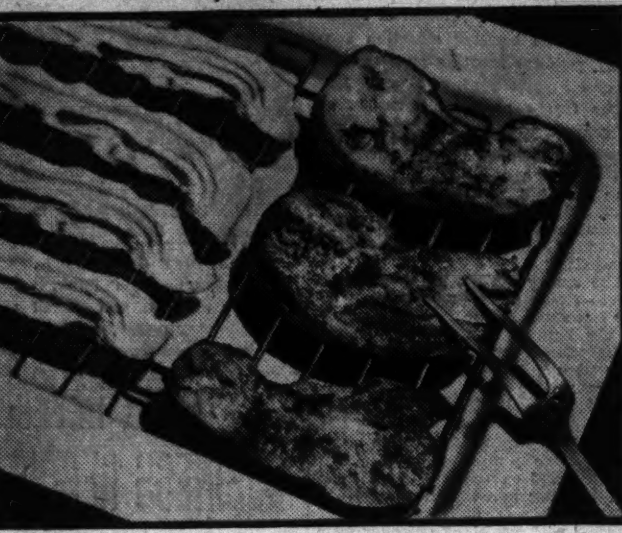

Our new Fashion Magazine for spring contains all of the new styles for women, misses and children, as well as interesting illustrated articles—Beauty Hints, Hair-dressing, How to Reduce Sensibly, Poise as an Aid to Fashions, Dress-making Hints, etc.

Just write "Fashion Magazine" on any piece of paper, inclose 10 cents in stamps or coin and mail your order to Fashion Department, The Washington Post, Fifth Avenue and Twenty-third street, New York City.

WHAT'S GOOD TO EAT—LIVER SUPPORTED BY BACON GAINS STEADILY IN FAVOR

By ANN BARRETT

NO surprise to me that the aroma of liver and bacon floats out of the White House kitchen these days! More and more people are preferring liver more and more often. Right up to the record held by Eddie Cantor, who says, "I can eat liver any time, in any form."

Any form? What are the other ways of cooking liver besides just frying it? Well, there's beef liver made into delicious little fritters. There's braised beef liver cooked in a certain German way that's very good. There's calf liver with orange sauce—a dish I tasted for the first time last week in a New York restaurant and liked so well I had a second helping.

All these dishes call for the support of bacon and onion. And to make all of them successfully, you must remember to let the liver stand in boiling water 5 minutes. Then (if it's beef liver) cook it slowly, so as not to dry it out. Calf's liver may be cooked faster (even broiled if it's brushed first with melted fat) but never beef liver.

Liver Fritters.
Aside from this, here's how to proceed with liver fritters. First fry 4 thin strips of bacon, and chop it fine. Then put 1 pound of good, fresh beef liver through the meat chopper. Mix this with the bacon. Then add 1 tablespoon minced onion, a tablespoon minced green pepper, 1 egg, 1 teaspoon flour, 1/2 teaspoon salt. Mix all ingredients thoroughly, then form into small, flat cakes and fry in the bacon fat. With rice or mashed potato, creamed onions and a good tart relish, this makes a meal worth eating.

Braised Beef Liver.
Braised beef liver (1 1/2 pounds) has an extra-good flavor when cooked first in milk to cover. Skin the liver first, trim out any sinews there may be, and let it stand in the milk 1 1/2 hours. Then brown 1-3 cup butter in a heavy skillet. Put in the liver (dredge the milk), sprinkle it with 1 teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon poultry seasoning, 2 tablespoons chopped parsley, 1/4 cup chopped onion. Cover the skillet, and simmer the liver 1 1/2 to 2 hours. Then remove liver and bacon. Add 1/2 cup stock or bouillon to juice left in skillet, and stir in 3 tablespoons flour mixed smooth with 1/2

Guiding Your Child

By MRS. AGNES LYNE

GIVING HIM CHOICES.

CHILDREN, like adults, prefer to do things of their own will rather than because they have to.

In every child's life, unless his mother is unusually skillful, there are too many daily situations in which he is quite plain that he has to do exactly as he is told. Frequently, the child shows that he resents this by becoming stubborn and indulging in fits of temper.

Often it is possible to avoid the direct command by giving the child a choice of two actions, either of which will achieve the desired end. Thus when it is time to wash before dinner the child's objections are overcome by asking him what he wants to wash first; or, at bed time, whether he wants to wear his pink or his blue pajamas.

In putting away his toys he may decide whether he wants first to put away his blocks or his animals. Since it is the feeling of being coerced rather than the tasks themselves, to which the child usually objects, such devices are surprisingly successful.

With children a little older it is a good idea to allow them to choose the time when homework will be done or certain home tasks attended to, the understanding being that, as long as they accomplish these things within a certain time, they are free to arrange the exact hour to suit their own convenience.

Children may be allowed to choose whether or not they will do certain periods at all, provided these are essential to health and proper routine.

When the child learns that, having failed to do one thing because he preferred to do another, he must accept the consequences, good or bad, he has learned one of the most valuable of all lessons, and one which may leave its permanent benefits.

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE

IF APRIL 4 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9:30 a. m. to 11:10 a. m., from 4 p. m. to 5:15 p. m., and from 8:30 p. m. to 9:30 p. m. The danger periods are from 12 noon to 1:10 p. m., and from 6 p. m. to 7 p. m.

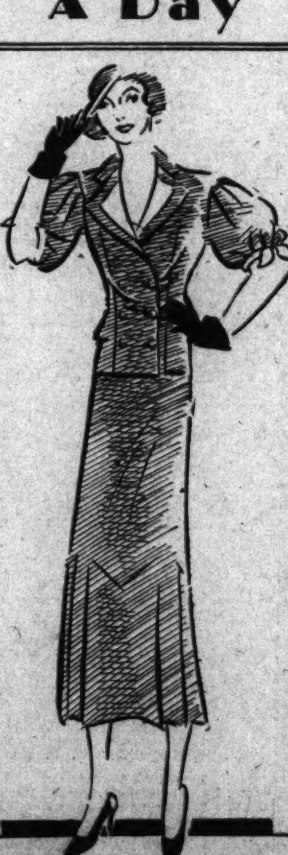

You may experience reverses of a minor sort in your business affairs on this date. These no doubt point to greater activity in the near future. A feeling of dissatisfaction with prevailing conditions will spur you on to greater endeavor. The home will not be restful.

The child born on this April 4 will early exhibit a very independent spirit. He will not be inclined to seek advice, nor to follow it when given, regardless of the source from which it comes. He will cause his parents a good deal of anxiety and worry.

If April 4 is the date of your birth, yours is a vigorous personality. You are restless, but your restlessness is not the kind that leads you aimlessly about doing this and that and not accomplishing anything. You are careful to direct your energies in right channels, and you energetically accomplish much of an inspiration and creative sort. You have a great diversity of abilities and a great many outstanding qualities both good and bad. Fortunately, you are able to see yourself as others see you and you so your best to blend your better qualities so as to preclude or suppress the poorer ones. You are no doubt an interesting psychological study.

Born on April 4, you are a spiritual person, but you believe in a practical and workable religion. You enjoy a good argument if there is no bitterness connected with it and you take great joy in coming out on top in a battle of words. A career as a lawyer would no doubt bring you success and happiness. Teaching should be in your line, for you have a tender and understanding way of dealing with children; you take the right to their hearts and win their absolute confidence in no time. You should marry as early in life as possible, for great impetus will be added to your career if you win the right mate. (Copyright, 1933.)

cup sour cream. Simmer till thick, strain, and pour over liver. Mashed potato, buttered carrots and fruit pie come up time with this good dish.

Calf's Liver With Oranges.

For this de luxe dish you'll need calf's liver cut about 1/2 inch thick. Dip this in boiling water, drain, and fry it (about 3 minutes on each side) in hot bacon fat. In another pan melt 2 tablespoons butter and try 1/4 cup chopped onions to delicate brown. Then add 1 cup fresh orange (cut in cubes). Season this with 1/2 teaspoon salt and 1/4 teaspoon pepper. Cook 2 minutes, and pour over liver. With fluffy boiled rice or French fried potatoes and buttered spinach, this dish is a sure winner.

Send for More Recipes.

Speaking of rice, you'll have dozens of winning dishes once you learn the many ways to cook this good old stand-by, and what to serve with it. ## How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

WORRY AND STOMACH ULCER.
WORRY, anxiety, and other emotions of that group are the principal underlying cause of ulcer of the stomach. The same holds true for those located in the small intestines.

In treatment by means of diet and medicine the ulcers will not heal if the bad emotional habits are continued. Operation is useless unless the worry is broken. The ulcers come right back if the stomach and medicine the ulcers will not heal if the bad emotional habits are continued.

Operation is useless unless the worry is broken. The ulcers come right back if the stomach and medicine the ulcers will not heal if the bad emotional habits are continued. Operation is useless unless the worry is broken. The ulcers come right back if the stomach and medicine the ulcers will not heal if the bad emotional habits are continued.

Dr. F. Alexander, in his "Medical Value of Psychoanalysis," advocates the above opinions, giving very aptly the Freudian explanation of the relationship between the mind and the emotions on the one hand and ulcers of the stomach and duodenum on the other. He cites a case, going into considerable detail, and establishing such a connection. He also quotes Dr. Harvey Cushing, of Harvard, as reporting perforation of the stomach following operation on the brain. Dr. Cushing thought the irritation of a certain zone in the brain had caused perforating ulcer of the stomach. Acting on the suggestion, Dr. R. N. Light had a drug injected into the veins of experimental animals and caused stomach ulcer. The drug acted on the nervous system and this brought about the ulcers.

The same general attitude is taken by Dr. B. Russ. He thinks gastric ulcers result from emotional strain, overwork and causes of that kind. The part played by tobacco, alcohol and diet is secondary.

There are many symptoms of indigestion of different kinds, but back of the indigestion lies the emotional disturbance. The indigestion may be, and often is, a contributing cause to the ulcer. We must not forget that indigestion is an effect, and that anxiety may be its cause.

Dr. Russ makes another contribution, and that along a related line. People of a certain type rarely have ulcers of the stomach or intestines. The characteristics of the type are broad people with large, pendulous, relaxed abdomens. Such people are prone to be constipated and to have attacks of headache and acidosis. They are subject to lassitude. While they are occasionally melancholic, they are not noisy, nervous nor excitable. As a rule, dirt farmers and people who live in the country are not ulcer subjects. On the other hand, the narrow and lean in build, the worriers, the excitable, the emotional are very prone to it.

Scarcely is one ulcer removed or cured without operation when another develops. (Copyright, 1933.)

Trackmen, Baseball Players, Cadets Vie for Positions.

By LEWIS F. ATCHISON.

ALL that was lacking at the Tech High School athletic field yesterday afternoon to complete the circus atmosphere was a calliope, a bag of peanuts and a couple of yards of canvas. According to information gleaned from a reliable source, there was a superabundance of clowns.

At one end of the spacious lot that some day will develop into a stadium were a lot of youngsters marching around with guns on their shoulders and at the opposite end the members of the Tech High School baseball team were throwing balls to one another. One

Radio Dial Flashes

By ROBERT D. HEINL

It is believed the recommendations for the revamping of the Federal Radio Commission will be sent to President Roosevelt at an early date. The reorganization plans were drafted by Judge Edwin L. Davis, of Tennessee, former chairman of the House Radio Committee, and Gen. Charles McK. Saltzman, former chairman of the Federal Radio Commission, in cooperation with Secretary of Commerce Roger and several others.

Judge Davis and Gen. Saltzman have been working on the recommendations for about two weeks but have declined to discuss them. It is learned on excellent authority, however, that if the President follows the recommendations submitted to him quite a shake-up in the Radio Commission will result, involving a drastic cut in the personnel.

There is considerable speculation as to the exact nature of the recommendations. One guess is, if the suggestions of Judge Davis and Gen. Saltzman are followed, the radio will not be lumped in with power or transportation as has been recently suggested. Instead, it is believed, the Radio Commission may be merged, if not into a division devoted entirely to radio, into a communications bureau, including telephone, telegraph and cable as well.

It is assumed this bureau would be in the Commerce Department and while it would have its own director, would come under the general supervision of an Assistant Secretary of Commerce yet to be selected.

Former Radio Commissioner O. H. Caldwell was in New York that the report that President Roosevelt contemplates abolishing the commission and transferring its authority to one of the departments was "highly encouraging."

Mr. Caldwell declared that doing away with the Radio Commission would effect savings of a large part of the approximately $500,000 per year spent by the commission. He said:

"The work of radio administration should be handled far more efficiently by a single competent executive and a small expert staff, than by the present five commissioners, some of whom know little about radio, and their vast clerical organization. Radio administration should be headed up through a member of the President's Cabinet, by whom it can be supervised, instead of being held in the hands of a politically appointed commission, subservient to the Senate, and accountable only to Congress."

Fred Waring, leader of the Pennsylvania, was interviewed by Bob Taplinger, conductor of the "Meet the Artist" series when that feature is broadcast over WJIS at 5 p. m.

During the interview Waring will introduce to listeners the featured entertainers with his large band, including brother Tom Waring, "Babe" and her brothers, the Lane sisters and Poley McClintock, of the trick, rapping voice.

A plan calling for the five-day week and the five-hour day will be discussed by Representative Fred A. Hartley, Jr., of New Jersey, over WJIS at 5:15 p. m. today. Representative Hartley is expected to incorporate his ideas into a bill to be introduced when the House is enacting legislation on unemployment relief.

THE Court of Appeals yesterday affirmed the decision of the Federal Radio Commission, which was taken to that court on the appeal of the City of New York as a result of the commission's ruling requiring that the city station, WNYC, be shifted to a daytime assignment and giving WMCA-WPCH full time, on the much-desired 870 kilocycle frequency.

This decision settles a long fight between the City of New York and the owners of WMCA-WPCH over the division of operating time which has existed during the period of more than four years that these stations have been operating on the 870 kilocycle frequency. This is said to make WMCA-WPCH one of the most desirable radio outlets in New York City.

The hearing before Chief Examiner Yost ran for three weeks, following which he made his report recommending in favor of the City of New York and its station WNYC.

The examiner's decision was reversed by the commission, after oral argument before the full membership. The order of the commission giving WMCA full time on 870 kilocycles and confining WNYC to a daytime assignment on 810 kilocycles was the subject of the appeal. The commission's decision was upheld by the court.

Station WMCA and WPCH were represented by Paul D. P. Spearman and the City of New York, by Edward J. Joyce, Jr., assistant corporation counsel. The case was fought hard and every step was strenuously contested by them.

Approximately six hours of rehearsal are necessary for the preparation of the dramatizations on the "Great Moments in History" series, although on the air they take less than 30 minutes.

"Say, you aren't Frank Parker, are you?" asked the studio visitor. "You bet I am!" said Parker. "Well, I'll be darned! Why, you're only a kid!" said the visitor. "I thought you must be at least 40, and big and fat."

He is 26, slender and one of radio's most handsome bachelors.

Ray Knight, author and star of the Cuckoo and Wheatonville programs, was honored when he addressed the Old Boys Association of Dufferin School, Toronto, recently. The association presented him with a handsomely embossed solid silver cigarette case. This honor has been reserved for past presidents and trustees of the aristocratic institution heretofore.

The Marquise of Dufferin was the only other exception.
